MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Sue Kilgore

Dear HCA Members:

There has been another Heisey Convention for the record books and I hope that you were there to share in the fun, friends, and beautiful glass. The Board of Directors is really happy with the increased numbers for all events and the awareness that was generated for and by our 40th Birthday Convention.

The excitement is building for the Gordon & Darlene Cochran Endowment Matching Funds Challenge which had its formal "kick-off" during the many meetings that were conducted. It was announced that before the actual kick-off we had already raised over $15,000. To add to that, the many study clubs gave generously to the challenge and an additional $20,000 was collected. There was also money given to the operating fund to the help with everyday expenses. Every one of the HCA members is very appreciative of the giving that has been done over the years to help HCA and our Museum.

Progress is being made for the continued health and wellness of our organization. New members of the board have been added. The three candidates were sworn in and we added an appointed member, Jay Barker. Jay was asked to fill the seat vacated by Bob Kreimer's death in late May. All new members have attended the required meeting and have been helpful with volunteering for committees and other places where their help is needed. It will be an exciting year with many opportunities for everyone to help "keep the doors open" at our one of a kind Museum.

This year the Executive Committee is made up of Jay Barker as our member-at-large, Mary Ann Spahr as secretary, Will Kennard as treasurer and Charlene Bowman as vice president. I will be working hard to make this, my last year as president of the board, one of the best years for HCA. I will need the help of all of the membership and I know I can count on all of you to do what ever you can to promote Heisey glass, our nationwide club and our Museum.

As I told Gordon and Darlene Cochran during the many times I said "thank you" to them - "WE CAN DO THIS!" and I know we will. What fun it should be and how great we will feel when we see the money grow for the Museum's endless future.

Please let me know if there is anything that you think the Museum or the organization should be doing, where we can make improvements and where you can help.

Thank you to everyone who had anything to do with the convention – Museum staff, organizers, volunteers and dealers. What a great experience and so friendly, too! Thank you also to the outgoing members of the Board of Directors Robert Loch, Ginny Marsh, and Sharon Orienter. Your help and service is greatly appreciated. ♦

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Charlie Wade

By now Convention has come and gone for another year. It is hard to believe that this was number 40. It seems like only yesterday, we were standing at the old Newark High School waiting in line to buy an Amber plate that would be the first in a series of six produced by Imperial from a Heisey Rococo mold. How many of you still have yours? It seems at that moment of purchasing, the plate led to my interest, then involvement with this great organization. I still remember that day as if it were yesterday. My grandmother (Mary Wade), my wife Susan, and our two daughters just happened to stop by and see what was going on! I always wondered what would have happened if we had not made the stop.

The Museum and the grounds looked impeccable this year as you will see from some of the photos in the Newsletter. From having the glass cleaned in the new Museum, to painting the Multi-purpose room, to cleaning windows and carpets, and, oh yes, we cannot forget the outside. With all the rain we had I began to think we would never get everything accomplished we wanted to in the courtyard. A big thank you to all who helped out.

Around the Museum for the month of May (along with cleaning and fixing), we had several tours and several folks stopped by on their way to somewhere else. It is always great to talk with them and answer questions pertaining to the glass, the factory, or the Museum. You can always tell the people who are really interested as they are the ones who really take the longest and ask the questions. A lady from California who was born and raised in Newark returned a couple of weeks ago to make a donation to the Museum. They had driven from Northern California making stops along the way to bring the pieces here and visit her childhood home town. They were very interesting and enjoyable to talk to about Heisey and Newark in general. You really meet some great people around here.

Walter and I hope you are enjoying the Heisey News now in LIVING COLOR. It truly makes the Newsletter more vibrant I think. Hopefully some day we will be able to do every issue and the content in Color. Speaking of the Heisey News can any of the new members out there tell me when the first issue went to press? If you know, please send me an E-mail me at director@heiseymuseum.org.

Now for the not so good news, rain and time has taken its toll on the front porch and the basement wall of the office building. A local contractor has looked at it and is now preparing a quote for the repair. This will require fixing a dry rotted support beam in the basement, so I am not very optimistic on the repair price. Sharon and I are starting to use more and more of the new economical light bulbs here at the Museum. As the olds ones burn up and the spares are used we look to buy the newer style. Wow, are those things expensive though. If any one out there has a connection with a wholesaler please let us know.

A big thank you to those of you who have donated glass after my last plea. Also a big thank you to the volunteers who help in any way at the Museum and to the staff for their great effort on helping to get us ready for Convention.

Until next month, Charlie. ♦

CURATOR'S REPORT

Walter Ludwig

Oh, what a glorious Convention we just finished here in Newark. The weather was perfect and everyone came here to have a good time and that is what they did.

I want to inform you that we have had two new patterns named through donations to the operating clubs. The Heisey Collectors Club of Michigan chose to honor their members Don and the recently deceased Betsy by naming the 4192 vase the Hanna vase. The Museum does not own one of these vases so the club would love to purchase one and give it to the Museum. You can help in the hunt. There are actually three sizes of the vase and it is shown in the December 2006 issue of the Heisey News on page 8. The other pattern that has been named is the 1508 card case. A group of Bob Kreimer's friends passed the hat here at Convention this year and made the donation possible. The card case will now be known as the 1508 Kreimer card case.

I also want to thank the two people who made donations to fill in the Museum's collection responding to the ad I ran in the Newsletter. Mary Cameron came forward with the 354 Wide Flat Panel 2 ½ oz. lavender jar (we are still missing the 16 oz. size). Also, Earle and Elaine Hart have donated the club bon bon in 343 Sunburst to replace the one that got broken in a cleaning accident. Both of these donations help to make the Museum's collection more complete. Many other donations were also given to the Museum during Convention and they will be acknowledged in next month's Newsletter. ♦

150 BANDED FLUTE AND 600 OLD GOLD MATCH STANDS

Eric Tankesley-Clarke

I've mentioned before how I am not a true collector of ash trays and smoking gear. That probably means I've ignored some good pieces of Heisey, but c'est la vie. All the same, along the way I bought a 600 Old Gold match stand ash tray (fig. 1). (Or ash tray and match stand. It depended on the Heisey mood on any given day, it seems.) Part of the fun in collecting Heisey is to research it. Whether the ID is obvious or the provenance impeccable (to use the language of the swell antique dealers), no matter, I like to track the new item down, whenever possible, to an original Heisey source, or as close as I can come. Tracing the Old Gold ash tray brought up some questions. I found that looking through the various catalogs, the illustrations did not make it clear just what was the difference between Old Gold and its predecessor, the 150 Banded Flute match stand. Certainly they were related, but how did they differ? (I see the hands up in back, but bear with me.)

600 Old Gold

150 Banded Flute as a pattern doesn't appear in Catalog 50 (about 1905); that's where Vogel got most of his Vol. 1. The pattern does show up in Catalog 56 (about 1909), and there is the match stand. Or perhaps I should say "a" match stand. Shown twice in the same book, but with the same illustration both times, the drawing displays the low, fluted sides and, evidently, a plain interior for the ash tray. In Cat. 75 the Banded Flute match stand again appears twice. At least this time, there are two distinct drawings, although they differ only in minor details of shading. So we know that some artist(s) had two chances to draw the thing, and still the interior is shown as smooth and unlined. Continuing the search for drawings, Cat. 102 simply repeats the same drawing that originally appeared in Cat. 56.

150 Banded Flute

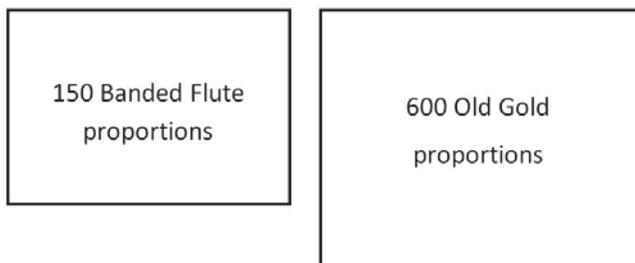

Then, we get to Cat. 109. That's the one from the late 1920s where they went to chic white-line drawings on black background. At last, a fresh take on the 150 Banded Flute piece, and here the ash tray portion is clearly shown with fine ribs descending from the match stand and sweeping across the bottom. (In defense of the earlier artists, the ribs are on the underside of the ash tray, so perhaps they didn't see the need to show that particular detail. Yet they usually showed stars when present; maybe stars were more fun to draw.) That was the last time this ash tray was illustrated, and we can be grateful that it made it into that catalog.

The early versions of Cat. 109 included a drawing of 600 Old Gold. It also illustrates the 150 with its drawing on a different page. If you place the two drawings side by side, there isn't much difference. The sizes and proportions appear to be about the same, if not identical. The only obvious distinction between 150 Banded Flute and 600 Old Gold is that Old Gold does not show the underlying ribs we see on Banded Flute.

Are those sweeping, radiating central ribs the only difference? No. Had I thought of it (but I didn't), I would have measured. Thankfully, the older Heisey catalogs were rather persnickety about showing everything to scale. It's an invaluable tool in determining sizes, especially for jugs, stemware, and other pieces described by capacity, rather than dimension. We all know that Heisey, for tormented reasons forever lost, were exceedingly casual about how much a thing could hold. But you can usually count on the illustrations for being straight-forward in showing how tall or wide something is.

Of course, the match stand isn't going to be measured by volume, but it has a length. And sure enough, if you do the calculations by scale from any of the sources I mentioned up through Cat. 102 (or from Vogel, Vol. 2), you'll find that the 150 Banded Flute match stand is 4" long. In fact, that is the actual measurement I took of a real one the other day (fig. 2). 600 Old Gold comes in at a whopping 4½". The proportions are different, too. It turns out that Old Gold, at 3 5/8" wide (or about 80% of its length), is broader by comparison than the 150 Banded Flute piece, which forms a more narrow rectangle 2¾" across, a bit less than 70% of its length (fig. 3).

Relative Proportions of Two Ashtrays

None of this is obvious looking at the catalogs. By the time Old Gold was on the market, the catalogs threw scale out the window (look out below!) so you can't make clear judgments as to size just based on a drawing. Yes, everything was drawn to scale (few things were obviously out of proportion, at least), but it isn't always obvious to which scale, and whether the scale applied to everything on the page, let alone different pages. In the later catalogs, Heisey had more scales than a striped sea bass. You see the problem.

For Catalog 211, 600 Old Gold got a new illustration which was carried over for Cat. 212. While it shows up more clearly in those last two catalogs, it still doesn't help much to distinguish size and proportion between the similar 150 and 600 match stands. Anyway, the Banded Flute match stand had been dropped by that time so there is no comparable re-done image of it. Old Gold also appears in Price List 217 (1944), but that one illustrates hardly any pressed ware, so that doesn't help, either. After that, neither one is listed.

So, what we can learn from this research adventure? Well, for one thing, especially in the older catalogs, Heisey was particular about showing accurate illustrations—most of the time. In the 150 match stand, I had stumbled across an instance where they had omitted a key detail, those ribs spanning the bottom. For another thing, size matters, so measure when all else fails, or even sooner. And finally, don't ignore the pieces outside your interest, because you never know when you'll learn something you can use somewhere else. Oh, yes. You in the back? You can put your hands down now.

1951 CABOCHON CREAM AND SUGAR

Eric Tankesley-Clarke

It took me a while. The older Heisey patterns were the first ones that caught my eye. A nice, sturdy colonial piece, that was for me. One day I brought home a footed honey dish (although I'm sure at the time I didn't know that's what Heisey called it) in a sleek, modern pattern. I knew the pattern, but hadn't previously succumbed. I presented my find almost apologetically, but Bob enthused over it, and with some fanfare 1951 Cabochon became a new favorite of ours.

This pattern was hyped in the magazines when A. H. Heisey & Co. introduced it. They must have sensed they had a winner in this one. Cabochon was said to combine the two basic geometric forms of the circle and the square. Most pieces had a squarish base, not truly square, but with rounded corners and gently curved sides. The smooth, graceful shapes almost make one think of the slightly later designs by Eva Zeisel. In this case, however, Horace King was the designer. Clearly, sleek simplicity was in the air. (Although Horace drew his inspiration from, of all things, a 1404 Old Sandwich plate.) The designs he created would have looked at home on any piece of Danish Modern furniture. (No, I'm not re-decorating for the sake of my table service.) It was said that the pattern was named after a cabochon ring worn by the flamboyant Clarence Heisey, the last president of the company. Certainly, a ring with a cabochon stone did appear in some advertising. Perhaps someone was trying to butter up the boss?

The pattern number was a break from the usual. By the 1950's, new patterns were generally numbered in the 1600's. After the privations of WWII, everyone, not just Heisey, was eager to shake off the past and celebrate the future. Words such as "smart" and "modern" showed up in ad campaigns for every product imaginable. To emphasize how modern Cabochon was (and by association, the company, too) they chose for a pattern number the year in which 1951 Cabochon was first widely promoted.

Production actually began in 1950 and continued right up to the closing of the factory and beyond, if you count Imperial's production, too. If you have a reprint of Catalog and Price List No. 31, September, 1950, you can see the introductory listing there. The company quickly decided to expand the line. I have a copy of the original catalog with, stapled in, a typed price list and a card with a new set of illustrations. Nearly twice the number of pieces are shown and priced in this addition. A different list, with even another piece or two added and yet a third set of illustrations, shows up in Catalog and Price List No. 32. The full line continued to be listed in the company's final catalog, No. 33.

When Imperial took over the molds, not all pieces of Cabochon were made, but the cream and sugar were, both with and without the cover. The last Imperial pieces were listed in 1971. The Imperial creams and sugars, at least some if not all of them, are marked with the Diamond H. (I suspect they were always marked, since a cutting they used in 1971 appears on marked pieces.) If they are undecorated, it may not be easy to tell who made a particular cream or sugar. Heisey ones are usually better finished, smooth surface with little or no rippling and mold seams not very apparent. Imperial pieces tend to show mold seams more prominently, and may have more rippling in the glass (sometimes called doe-skin). Neither of those are absolutely reliable indicators, though. Imperial could produce excellent pieces, and sometimes Heisey was a little sloppy. Ultraviolet is probably more reliable. Imperial pieces generally do not react under ultraviolet, or if they do, the reaction - a greenish-yellow glow - is much weaker than in Heisey pieces. Even this test should probably be used only carefully and with circumspection.

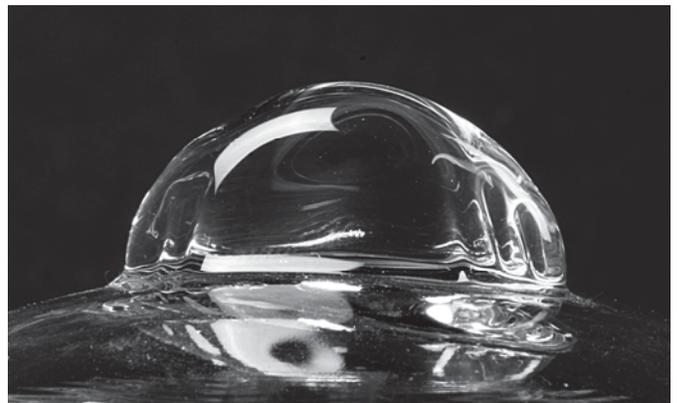

The cream and sugar formed part of 1951 Cabochon from the very start (fig. 1). As with most later sugars, they were smaller than ones made in the 1920s and earlier. They were made in only one size. Not much of a challenge, is it? Since both pieces have handles, they have yet one more feature to show off the sleekness of the pattern. The handles are distinctly shaped. They are more fluid in keeping with the general appearance of the pattern. The handles lack a flattened area at the top for a thumb rest and take their corners as smooth curves, never sharp angles. Yet, at the same time the handles manage to be more generally squarish in outline than in other patterns. In this somewhat surprising way (I'm easily surprised), Cabochon again merges the square and the circle. Since the handles are pressed, not applied, they are not subject to the whimsy or skill of individual workers and always come out looking the same, maintaining the integrity of the design and the artistic sensibility of Mr. King.

From the very beginning, the sugar was offered both with and without cover. This reflected the trend toward informality and breeziness. (There's another favorite copywriter's word from the 50's. Many products were made for a breezy lifestyle. It must have been like living in a wind tunnel.) Catalog drawings emphasize the handle on the cover as though it has the side ornaments we see, for instance, in the cabochon-style Heisey signs (fig. 2). In practice, however, the cover handle (or knob, if we want to get fancy about it) seldom showed much detail (fig. 3). Covers are quite a bit less common than sugars themselves, even accounting for the inevitable lost and broken ones. This suggests that the company correctly guessed that many buyers felt at ease dispensing with lids. Not only that, but the cover handle is so small that it is often hard to hang on to. I wouldn't be surprised if this didn't contribute to the relative scarcity of the sugar covers today. Since the cover was considered optional then, you may also think of it as optional when you decide whether your set is complete or not.

When the sugar is without a cover, the cream appears larger than the sugar, mostly because of the hand-tooled spout. Adding the cover to the sugar puts it on more even terms with the cream.

Both cream and sugar sit on the signature rounded-square feet. The bottoms are never ground, and there is never a star impressed on the bottom. You will usually find them marked on the bottom.

There is a 9" tray for the cream and sugar. This was one of the pieces added to the pattern later, first being mentioned, but not illustrated, in the 1953 Catalog No. 32. (It wasn't even in that additional typewritten list I mentioned earlier.) Obviously, the tray was an afterthought and not considered essential by Heisey. Apparently, the buying public agreed, since the tray now shows up only occasionally. There are two catalog illustration for the tray. To confuse things (or to spice things up, depending on your frame of mind), neither one is with the Cabochon cream and sugar. Both are in Catalog No. 33. One is shown as part of a sauce or jam set with three 1485 Saturn covered mustards (fig. 4). The other is used to make a 1485 condiment set.

For the compulsive among us, it makes it tricky to decide when you have completed a Cabochon cream and sugar set. There are four combinations offered by Heisey of cream and sugar with or without cover and with or without tray. I suppose the truly obsessed could go for all four combinations. What was it I was saying about challenges?

The pattern was popular, as 22 years of production between two companies attests. That means creams and sugars in crystal are not too difficult to find. When colors were resurrected in the 1950's, some pieces of Cabochon were among the chosen few. Fortunately for the collectors who like the color, Cabochon creams and sugars were made in Dawn (fig. 5). Neither of the two pieces is very common in this color. For some reason, I've seen several more creams than sugars in Dawn, but that may be just luck of the draw. I have never seen a Dawn cover for the sugar, but it is certainly possible they were made. As for Limelight, a 1955 price list shows the candy box made in this color, but does not mention cream or sugar, and I doubt those were ever made. A very few pieces of 1951 Cabochon appear in Sultana, but I have not heard of the cream or sugar being among them. The blown, heavy-footed sodas, juices, tumblers, and the like in 6092 Cabochon are where you will more easily find that color, and even those are hard to come by. Imperial made Cabochon only in crystal.

Cabochon is a plain pattern, evidently too plain for some people. Several decorations will be found on it. The cream and sugar are sometimes seen with other companies' work, usually simple cuttings or a bit of silver. Heisey's own 507 Orchid and 515 Heisey Rose etchings appear on the Cabochon butters, but I haven't seen a listing for them on the cream or sugar. The idea of table sets was long past, so that isn't too surprising. Among cuttings available on the Cabochon creams and sugars are 941 Barcelona, 980 Moonglo, 1015 Dolly Madison Rose, 1025 Arcadia, 1070 Bel-Air, 1072 Southwind, 1091 Wheat, 1092 Melody, and 520B Leaf (a Zeisel design; the only illustration I'm aware of for this cutting is in Viola Cudd's 1969 book, long out of print). There are possibly others, although not every cutting that appeared on Cabochon was used on the creams and sugars. Imperial creams and sugars can be found with their C837 Denise cutting (fig. 6). None of the cuttings were listed for covered sugars, only open ones, so don't go looking for lids for these sets. Trays weren't listed with the cuttings, either.

Cabochon was also good for misspelling. Even in one of the typed price lists from the factory, you can see that the typist first pecked out

"Cabachon" and then corrected that second "a" to an "o". It's a mistake you see repeated in some old HCA newsletters and one that lives on today. For 22 years, sales clerks had to remember how to spell it, and probably had to teach their customers to spell and pronounce it. Gee. Geometry and spelling. Who knew Heisey was so active in education?

MANY BENEFITS FROM DONATING DURING THE MATCHING FUNDS CHALLENGE - PART 1

Robert Loch

You can benefit by contributing to the National Heisey Glass Museum endowment fund. It's true.

Gordon and Darlene Cochran have challenged Heisey Collectors of America to contribute to the National Heisey Glass Museum endowment fund. They will match dollar-for-dollar your gifts until August 1, 2012, up to a total of $250,000. That means that every one of us can double our gift right from the get-go. Send in a $500 check, and the endowment fund will increase by $1000. Now, that's a benefit. And, it's perfectly simple.

Then, consider some other financial benefits that you yourself may receive when you make your gift.

If you are age 70 1/2 or older, you may take advantage of an important incentive for charitable giving. Congress has re-authorized the IRA Rollover provision that allows donors to make gifts from their IRA accounts to one or more charities without first incurring income tax on the withdrawal. That means that you can direct an amount to the National Heisey Glass Museum endowment (Park National Bank Account Number 2799) from your IRA with no federal income tax liability. This gift counts toward your annual Required Minimum Distribution. The IRA rollover provides you an opportunity to make a gift during your lifetime from an asset that could be subject to multiple levels of taxation if it remained in your taxable estate. This way, you don't need to make any revisions to your written Will or Testament to benefit our Museum.

You can make this type of gift for tax year 2011 provided you make your gift by December 31, 2011. Talk to your tax adviser, or ask your IRA custodian about making such a gift now during the matching funds challenge. Why not get yourself an income tax benefit, plus double your contribution by way of the matching funds challenge this year? ♦

SELECTED GLASS FROM OSU SHOW – 2011

WHAT WAS DONE IN '71?

Sue Kilgore

July 1971

On a personal note, Dan & I, or as our son would say "seeking our fortunes" moved to North Carolina for Dan's first design job in High Point at the Aldreman Company. Our families were sad to see us leave but they had a "feeling" we would be back and they were right but not until 1975 and with two more children.

People born in July of 1971 included Olympic skater Kristi Yamaguchi, singer Alison Krauss, actress Sandra Oh of Grey's Anatomy, and rapper Missy Elliott. Also born was Koko, a famous Lowland gorilla, at San Francisco Zoo.

Louis Armstrong, the famous jazz trumpeter, died July 6th, 1971. His funeral in NYC was attended by 25,000 people. Jim Morrison, singer of The Doors, died in July and actor Van Heflin died in 1971.

Our right to vote, the 26th amendment, was lowered to age 18 from 21 in July.

The UK increased the number of troops in Northern Ireland to 11,000 in July.

Gloria Steinem made her "Address to the Women of America" at the founding of the National Women's Political Caucus.

The South Tower of the World Trade Center in NYC is topped out at 1,362'.

Please send your memorable and happy items to add to this column. I know there are some of us who can still remember back that far, right?! ♦

Bob was originally from Kansas City, MO. Please keep the entire Kriemer family in your thoughts and prayers. ♦

FRACTURED FAIRYTALE Sisters Graham

As the "creation" grew larger and larger, there was no denying the possible "birth" of a new and more wonderful "branch of the tree". The "creations" new home was being readied for the grand "arrival" – floors secured, room arrangements planned, "cases" for future treasurers, rooms for organization – everything inside and out. Little did this group know, at the time, that the new "home" would need even more "growing" in the near future. Success on a larger scale was not their first thought but was a possibility!

If all of us had half the heart and drive that the original villagers had, then we know for sure that the possibilities are endless.

Can you believe how this little "creation" will turn out?

We have selected glass for the auction from our submitted lists but have not inspected the glass. Our deadline for submission of glass is July 11 and after the Newsletter article deadline. We should have nearly 200 lots of clean damage-free Heisey glass for your buying enjoyment! As with the Spring (Benefit) Auction, all net proceeds go 100% to support the Museum.

We are also planning to have a late Saturday morning activity at the Museum- a glass show/flea market! HCA Board Member Michael Maher of the Buckeye Heisey Collectors Club of Newark has agreed to be the organizer/contact person for this event - hopefully folks will be setting up and selling Heisey and other glass in our Museum parking lot. Please contact Michael by telephone at (740)-763-4256 or by e-mail at theflyingmaher@yahoo.com if you are interested in setting up. All space rentals will go to the Club that in turn will contribute them all to HCA!

FYI, the September Newsletter will include a listing of the Fall Select Auction glass and other instructions, including absentee bid forms for use by those who can't make it to Newark for a great weekend. Hopefully, we can highlight our special pieces for auction in that issue. We also intend to have the information on the Heisey Glass Museum website.

Hope to see you there - please come and plan on spending the day with us and have a great time at your Museum! ♦

HEISEY FALL SELECT AUCTION – OCT. 15, 2011 Dave Spahr, HCA Auction Chair

CLUB NOTES

Great Plains Heisey Club Kathy Files

We're not a new Heisey study club, but our GPHC meetings just keep getting better and better. On May 14th, 2011, we convened in Ames, Iowa at the lovely home of Mary and Gregg Cameron. It was a nippy and damp day but we enjoyed seeing everyone and had a great time. The Cameron's have a beautiful Heisey collection for all to view and talk about. Chef Matt prepared a delicious Mothers' Day brunch for us to savor and prolong the celebration a week after the actual day. (Mothers deserve all the attention they can get). We requested that some of those great recipes be added to our website so others can experience them while viewing other news about our club www.greatplainsheiseyclub.org

With a happily full stomach, President John Mock called our meeting to order at approximately 1 pm. The previous meeting minutes were approved and the Treasurer's report was given. The members voted to again buy food for the hospitality room at the Convention. Other Convention duties discussed included the silent auction at the Museum and the banquet auction that Mary is organizing – those events are shaping up to be special times with terrific Heisey pieces donated.

Our program was on colonial Heisey nappies presented by Eric Tankesley-Clarke (aren't his Heisey News articles informative and thorough!). Eric had an extensive display arranged to show examples as he discussed and noted the characteristics of the patterns. I'm sure we all will now look at the colonial nappies with more educated eyes. And the handout will provide valuable future reference. Thank you, Eric, for another session of learning – you did a great job.

We enjoyed a Show and Tell with a good variety of Heisey. Some of the items shown by our members included: Airedale and Ringneck Pheasant, 160 Locket on Chain and 1951 Cabochon cake salvers, 5012 Urn bud vase 10" with 515 Heisey Rose etch, 1776 Kalonyal molasses, 466 Great Plains basket with floral cutting, 1447 Rococo 6" comport and footed cheese, 1433 Thumbprint and Panel vase in Sahara, 174 ½ tumbler and 1183 Revere peach melba both with narrow optic, 1232 Spoke 8" plate in Moongleam, 1108 ½ Penelope egg cup, 1252 Twist nasturtium bowl in Alexandrite, 393 Narrow Flute 10" Japanese garden tray/cupped, 4091 Kimberly 10 oz. goblet with 944 Courtship cutting, 305 Puntly and Diamond Point #2 salt shaker, 1184 Yeoman 8 oz. goblet alongside a non-Heisey look-a-like in pale green, 3355 Fairacre vase in Flamingo, and, the star of the show, a previously unseen marked 8" nappy tentatively numbered and named 8100 Horseshoe and Bull's Eye. Whew, sorry if I left anything out but sometimes I ooh and aah instead of write.

Our 50/50 auction to raise money for HCA was fun and spirited as usual and a huge success. Thanks to Jean Will for the homemade jelly and jam and to the rest of the donors. The meeting was adjourned as it was time to eat again. The desserts of carrot cake and lemonade cake satisfied everyone's sweet tooth and sent all attendees away full and happy. Thanks to Chef Matt and the Camerons for great food and a fine meeting. ♦

Northwoods Heisey Club of Minnesota Ann Moll

The twelve members who attended the May 14 meeting of the Northwoods Heisey Club, hosted by Jerry and Marilyn Coleman, had a delightful time, which was high lighted by our annual auction and raffle.

We are grateful to have Gordon and Carole Olsen's grandson working with Bob Heise to complete the contents of our Web Site. In celebration of our tenth year as a club, Virginia Johnson and Marilyn Coleman (our first secretary) will write the history of the club as requested by HCA. The Heises and the Olsens will be in attendance at the HCA Convention, June 15-18, in Newark, Ohio.

The monies raised by our auction and raffle will be given to the Endowment Fund of HCA. Those monies will be matched by Gordon and Darlene Cochran, who announced in the May "Heisey News", would match dollar for dollar all donations to the Museum Endowment Fund until July 31 of 2012. Our club is sending $100 for the Hospitality Room for the June Convention. We again generated some ideas to increase membership. Bob Heise will contact the Minneapolis and St. Paul newspapers for an announcement of our meetings. Gordon Olsen volunteered to call about setting up a table at the various antique shows at the MN State Fair grounds. Virginia Johnson will write an article to the "Heisey News" with information about our Northwoods Club, and inviting HCA members living in MN and WI. All past individuals, who have expressed an interest in Heisey and our Club, will be contacted by the Heises, who are the hosts of the August 13 meeting at 1:00 p.m.

After the adjournment of the meeting, Ann Moll presented a program on Heisey Cruets. She referred to Homer Paulson's "Heisey Cruet Pocket Guide" (available at the Heisey Museum) and gave a history of cruets and stoppers. The following Heisey Cruets were passed around to the members: Victorian, Crystalite, Saturn, Ipswich, Fandango, Greek Key, Twist, and Pleat and Panel in Flamingo.

Sharing began with the Christensons, who had a 1575 Tulip vase. They also had an interesting article about the "Harvey Girls" and the Santa Fe and Harvey House. A.H. Heisey & Company made glass for them in what is described as "Harvey Amber". Mary Olson had a glass nell with 507 Orchid etching. This had been made from a wine. Two articles were mentioned with pictures of Heisey in the current May issue of "Country Living"

There were 18 pieces of Heisey, plus four reference books, available for the auction which netted a profit of $1000 to be given to the HCA Endowment Fund! Included in that amount was the profit of the raffle. The winner was Marilyn Coleman who received 5 hand blown Crystalite tumblers. Bob Heise was our auctioneer and Mary Olson assisted him by showing members the Heisey items before bidding.

The afternoon concluded with delicious punch, Marilyn's special Finnish cake, carrot cake and coffee served by the Colemans. ♦
