From Down Under

The holidays are upon us and many of you will be shipping items (including your HCA auction glass), so I have compiled a checklist for you to use as a guide for good packaging.

Packaging

- * Choose a sturdy, undamaged container.
- * Use a carton which is strong enough to pass the 200 pound per square inch bursting test.
- * Make sure that the flaps are intact.
- * Plan for extra space for adequate cushioning.

Cushioning

- * Use several inches of polyfoam peanuts or similar material in bottom of carton.
- * Wrap items separately and position them in center of carton.
- * Surround items with polyfoam peanuts or other similar material.

Closure

- * Use tape designed for shipping; it should be at least 2 inches wide.
- * Do not use cellophane tape, masking tape, or string.

Labeling

- * Use one address label on package.
- * Write legibly.
- * Provide a complete delivery address, including zip code.
- * Include a duplicate mailing label inside the carton.
- * Label the carton FRAGILE (in red) on the top and sides.

Following the above guidelines will increase the chances of your package arriving safely at its destination. ♦

Sam's Scribbles

Sam Schnaidt, President

Nineteen hundred and ninety three is fast drawing to a close. It has certainly been an exciting year for all of us who have been closely involved with the HCA activities. Of course, the highlight of the year was the opening of the new museum and the refurbishment of the King House for the convention in June. We still have a few things to do to complete the furnishings, but things should be pretty much in place before the year ends.

Again, I cannot say enough to thank all who have helped so much to make this year run so smoothly. We have the finest group of people who are willing to help at almost any task required. We also have an outstanding staff. Our newest employee, Sue Taylor, has jumped right in and is very helpful to all of us. I hope that she will be able to relieve Karen of some jobs so that she can devote more time to making our museum as fine in programs and education as it is in physical facilities.

Our attendance has been continually increasing. I regret that I have personally not been able to spend as much time at the museum as I would like to due to business and other obligations, but I know that the other members of the executive committee have put forth the extra effort and made certain that nothing important has been omitted. Norm Thran stops by my office almost daily to go over things with me and keep me on my toes. I really have appreciated his personal commitment.

Enough about the past and on to the future. Sue Taylor has jumped in with some great ideas for the Holiday Dinner December 4. If you have not made a reservation please call and we will include you. We have a local winemaker from Granville who will talk to us and let us do some wine tasting during our social hour. Sue has arranged for a trio from the Licking County Symphony Orchestra to furnish music. The evening should be most enjoyable and Riley's is catering a roast beef and baked chicken dinner at the museum for us. Norm has selected some special items for our auction. Hope to see many of you on the 4th.

Don't forget to get your glass in for the benefit auction. Glass must be in by Monday, January 3. Also, we are especially looking for some outstanding pieces to be donated to specifically benefit the endowment fund. Please consider one choice piece for this. It is all tax deductible. Also, remember the Cadillac-Lincoln Dinner on Saturday night at the conclusion of the auction. I feel we will need more support from our members for this project. Please consider buying a ticket and attending. I am certain you will have a good time even if I win the car!♦

Mail Early—Beat the Rush

Carl Sparacio

Though many look upon it as a chore, it's time for the annual tradition of spreading joy with a check book. It takes the holiday season to remind us that we owe many, many thanks. Few of us ever think to express our gratitude throughout the year. We take things for granted and still we grouse when we should be glad the holidays give us the opportunity to salve some guilt.

If your house is like ours, you're about ready to sit down and make out checks and fill envelopes with seasonal gratuities. You know, something for the paper person, the mail person and the garbage men (persons haven't invaded the latter profession in our town as yet but we do have a plumber person who cleans a mean cesspool). In addition to the stipends for the folks who provide services, a show of appreciation with a contribution to the charitable organization and churches who do the thankless jobs we've come to expect throughout the year is also in order. Only then can we begin to feel good about ourselves.

This year my wife and I added the National Heisey Glass Museum Endowment Fund to our Christmas list. There will be a check and a thank you note from our house to be placed under the HCA Christmas tree. It will be similar to our paper boy's "gift"—we're an equal opportunity giver. The amount is not the point, but it matters that we'll be sending a holiday thank you to the fund to help it grow big enough to preserve everything Heisey lovers put together in our beautiful museum.

Suppose every HCA member put two bucks in an envelope and sent it to the Endowment Fund? What do we have—maybe four or five thousand members? For the sake of argument, let's say five. Good Lord! That's ten thousand dollars right there! Suppose we each put, instead, five dollars in an envelope to allow for inflation? WOW! The number boggles the mind.

Of course, if you're really dedicated to the Endowment Fund, you'll give your paper boy a Christmas card wishing him the joys of the season and include a note that says, "A donation has been made to the National Heisey Glass Museum Endowment fund in your name." You may find yourself picking your newspaper out of the shrubbery piece by piece each morning but stand fast, that's only an indication that the lad did not fully grasp the spirit of your gesture. As he grows older he will understand and thank you for it. ...Sure.

As they say on the talk shows, "But seriously, folks, all kidding aside."

Our museum, the National Heisey Glass Museum, is the future of Heisey collecting. Who will take care of it when we're gone? Do we dare leave it to chance? Let's inundate the post office in Newark, Ohio with Christmas greetings for the National Heisey Glass Museum Endowment Fund—even the smallest amount adds up big time when we all pitch in.

It's a start. ♦

Holiday Dinner—Last Chance for Reservations!

Saturday, December 4

The Holiday dinner will be held at the museum in the multi-purpose room. The evening promises to be festive with delightful Heisey friends and a delicious menu of roast beef, chicken, apple salad, tossed salad, red potatoes, vegetables, topped off with pie! If you haven't already made your reservations for Saturday, December 4, call (614) 345-2932. Cocktails begin at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m.

HO! HO! HO! HCA has pulled some special little surprises from its bag. An auction will be held after dinner. No mail bids accepted, but if your interested ask someone who is attending to bid for you. Wouldn't these make great holiday gifts: Sea Mist Green Double Horsehead Paperweight, Shiny Rosalene Madonna, Cranberry Mist Showhorse, two Verde Green Sparrows, two Black Cygnets, Verde Green Clydesdale.♦

Dear Santa—Or to Whom It May Concern

Carl Sparacio

How do you tell Santa what you want for Christmas? Think about it—it's not as easy as it seems. There are rules, albeit unwritten, which limit the ways you can get the word out. Unless you're a guileless child you are not permitted to be straight forward. The trick is to let your Christmas wishes be known in a manner so delicate, even you will be "surprised" when you open your gift Christmas morning.

"Oh, how could you possibly have known!" is the wonder most often expressed by a gift recipient—a recipient who has done everything to get the message across short of sticking Post-it Notes on the refrigerator or hiring a shy writer. It is indeed merciful that a Best Overacting Award is not one of the traditions of the holiday season.

Discreet hint dropping is the most widespread method in use today to insure the giver gives the desired gift but its success rate varies with, and is dependent upon, the density of the hinted. There are those who would miss the message even if it were printed on every tissue in the tissue box he empties while suffering with a runny-nose head cold. Catching a hint often takes more talent than throwing one.

A good ploy is to leave an open catalog about the house with a specific item not too obviously circled. This often works though, admittedly, I haven't mastered the "not too obviously" part. One could always address a letter to "To whom it may concern" and send it to the North Pole. That's always good. I've found, however, this works only when I give the letter to my wife to mail. I've struck out every time I posted my own. Perhaps it's true what they say—the postal service deteriorates each time they raise the rates.

In a worse case scenario, you can stand in line down at the mall with people half your size and one tenth your age and try to look nonchalant while waiting your turn to sit on Santa's lap and spill your guts. This latter method is advisable only in a most extreme case of desperation.

Multiply by ten how tough it is for the average person to get the word out on what he'd like for Christmas, then square that number and you'll have a pretty good idea what a Heisey collector faces when trying to realize his Christmas wish. A Heisey collector has a zillion strikes against him. First off, though hard to believe, not everyone likely to give that Heisey collector a present is attuned to Heisey.

Hint: "Boy, a Fandango goblet would sure look great in my collection."

Hinted: "Huh?"

If you're lucky and have a generous someone to whom you can hint who understands what you're saying, your problem still isn't over. Where does your benefactor find the object of your desire? Certainly not at Toys (backwards "R") Us. You can hint from now until doomsday and, no matter how good the gift giver's intentions, it's unlikely a Fandango goblet will be readily available in your favorite Heisey dealer's inventory, let alone the local Walmart.

Let's just say you're lucky and do find your rarity for sale in an ad in the back of the Heisey News. The obvious thing to do (but remember, "not too obviously") is mark the item and leave the paper open to that page and place it where it is sure to be seen. There are downsides to this method. First, by the time your target puts two and two together, takes the hint and calls in the order, your Christmas wish item will be long gone. Someone else had sense enough to buy himself a Christmas present the day his Heisey News arrived. On the bright side, the dealer will "make a note and call the very next time another Fandango Goblet comes in."

Bah, humbug!

If you lived at our house, there would be yet another drawback. The one for whom I circle an item in an ad (who shall remain nameless this close to Christmas) is not fond of this method. "Darn it, who marked up our copy of the Heisey News? I just hate that!" is what I've heard in the past. One must assume, since there are only two of us in the house, the question is purely rhetorical. This is why I now confine myself exclusively to the "Letter to Santa" bit. It doesn't solve the availability problem but it keeps me out of trouble.

If only I had the guts to bring my Christmas wish list to the Santa down at the mall—but I'm a coward and can only imagine what it would be like.

(You may imagine the following scene all fuzzy and out of focus—like a slow motion dream sequence in a grade B movie).

"Hi, Santa, my name is Carly."

"Hurry up, kid, people are staring. Say, do you need a shave?"

"I've been good all year, I donated to the HCA Endowment Fund and I bid away our mortgage money at the Heisey Benefit Auction."

"Wonderful, now speak English and do it quickly, you're heavy."

"I'd like a Fandango goblet for Christmas."

"Why would you need a goblet to dance the Fandango?"

"No, no, Santa, it's a piece of Heisey."

"What's a Heisey and wouldn't a whole one be better than just a piece? Boy, you're a big kid—do you have a hormone problem?"

Back in the real world we can only resign ourselves to the fact that life's not easy for a Heisey collector. No matter, at least the joys far outweigh the drawbacks.

And, speaking of joys, we'd like to wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy Hanukkah. May you know all the joys of the holiday season, be blessed with good health in the New Year and have success getting the word out on your Fandango goblet—no matter what it may be. ♦

Curator's Report

Karen D. Kneisley

This time of year everyone becomes a list-maker. You know: gift lists, guest lists, grocery lists, last-minute errands. This month I'm going to do the same thing.

1. If you haven't made your reservations for the Holiday Dinner on December 4, please do so. It's easy—just give us a call and you're on the list. We have planned some new things and the museum will be very beautiful at this time of year. Please join us for a festive evening.

2. If you're feeling especially generous this season I hope you'll add the museum to your gift list. We could really use some more authentic Heisey for the Museum Shop and there's always the Endowment Fund if you're in the checking-writing mood.

3. Don't forget to pack up your auction glass for the All-Heisey March Benefit Auction. You have until Monday, January 3 to get it here. I know that's officially next year, but "he who hesitates is lost." Remember, only 12 lots per family—extra items will be considered a donation to the Endowment Fund. Our Shipping Clerk, Wesley "Brad" Bradford, has put together some packing tips on page 3 that will help ensure the glass makes it here in good condition.

4. The end is near! Yes that's right, as the end of 1993 approaches, so does the conclusion of the Gem Series monthly payment schedule. Please make your final payment (due December 15) so that we can move on to other exciting things. Also, if you're on the monthly plan for the Gold Series, we'd love for you to complete your set early.

5. It's that time again—the annual Oscar is coming soon. For 1994 we'll offer the little Plug Horse in Lavender Ice. A form will appear in the next issue.

6. If you've been waiting for your gift (Endowment or otherwise) to be acknowledged, we plan on running such lists twice during the year: in February and August. This time frame allows us to include donations from the "busy" seasons: Christmas and Convention. We'll list the Endowment members by category.

Oh, and don't forget to have a safe and happy holiday season! ♦

Focus on the Collection—Heisey's Glassware for Your Table, literally

Karen D. Kneisley

For me holidays evoke memories of elegant tablesettings and beautiful decorations pulled from Grandma's shelves especially for the occasion. When Grandpa built their house, he constructed special cupboards for her masses of glassware—glass doors that let us see her beauties year round. But for special occasions we drink from the Candlewick and pass the pickles in it. She also collected salt and pepper shakers for many years and had so many that there were sets boxed up and put away before I was old enough to remember them. Holiday dinners are always festive at Grandma's tables, with everything from Turkey and Snowman shakers to elegant blown glassware.

I don't remember any Heisey in her cupboards, there might have been. But I like to think that my appreciation of "all that glitters" comes from Grandma. She was tickled, as my family likes to say, that I took a position in a glass museum and I can't wait for her to visit.

As our holiday gift to you, Kelly Thran and I have spent some time dreaming up some tablesettings from the collection. It wasn't a complex assignment—we've selected contrasting colors, similar shapes and pattern designs. This may not be the way Grandma would have set the table, or you either. It's simply another way of enjoying Heisey Glassware.

Take a look at the first black and white photo, then close your eyes and imagine it in color. Picture an elegant lavender and yellow dinner table, accented with sparkling gold ribbon and white tulips (roses if you prefer). Not a conventional choice for the holidays, but we chose patterns with similar organic patterns and picked Alexandrite and Sahara as complementary colors.

Our table is set in Sahara with a #1405 Ipswich plate, a #1415 Twentieth Century cereal bowl (but we're using it as a nappy or jelly) and #140 Crocus candlesticks. Alexandrite is represented by a #1306 Comet Leaf goblet, #3397 Gascony sherbet and #1413 Cathedral vase. Crystal #1447 Rococo salt and pepper shakers complete the picture and we'd add a #3397 Gascony cream and sugar set (not shown).

Stars become an important decorating theme at this time of year and here we're using them for a festive holiday breakfast. Cuttings, carvings and geometric patterns are the key here—the straight edges of New Era and some of the Colonial patterns are simple enough for this meal, but elegant in their own right. Moongleam adds a hint of color to the table and a centerpiece of ivy and tinsel would be the finishing touch.

#4044 New Era cup, saucer and sherbet, all with #826 Venus cutting; a #4054 Ball vase with #5016 Stars and Stripes carving; #212 Chevron tumbler; and #1201 Fandango salt dip and butter pat are the crystal "stars" in this feature. Added attractions are #393 Narrow Flute individual cream and sugar set, #1231 Octagon plate and #141 U-shape candlestick, the last two pieces in Moongleam.

Of course, photographs can't do justice for the glass. Next time you're in the museum, give this a try—It's a lot of fun and it may bring back some sweet memories for you, too. ♦

Krall Space: Notes by Anton Krall on the Cutting Process

compiled by Karen D. Kneisley with assistance from Don Valdes

YOU'RE INVITED TO MEET

EMIL KRALL

noted glass engraver to royalty

The famous Emil Krall—who once engraved royal crests on the glassware of European nobility—will be at Kaufmann's today! Come in—watch him at his fascinating work. Have him engrave your monogram on distinctive-looking Heisey glassware.

The engraver must have absolute confidence in his ability to make a cut on glass where he wants it. There are no erasers for engravers. Once the glass touches the revolving wheel, a mark is left on the glass which cannot be erased.
—Anton Krall

Primary sources are crucial to proper historical interpretation. Research derived "from the horse's mouth" is not only more accurate, but adds to the reader's enjoyment of the final interpretation. In Heiseyland we are fortunate to have several sources of information that are contemporary (in varying degrees) to the manufacture of A.H. Heisey & Co.'s glassware. We have been able to rely on, among other things, catalogs and price lists, correspondence, turn books and the word of several original Heisey players.

In 1979 Louise Ream began correspondence with Anton Krall, son of Willibald and nephew of Emil, the head of the Heisey cutting staff. In his letters Anton Krall answered questions about Heisey cuttings and his family and included manuscripts about copper and stone wheel lathe cutting. Mr. Krall provided not only good descriptions, but insight into the mind of an artisan and artist. His writings ranged from commentary on the plight of craftsmanship to diagrams that explained the way his uncle would execute his elaborate designs.

From a letter dated March 8, 1979, speaking about more recent trends in cutting design, Mr. Krall wrote: "Regarding designs for glass—I have seen some "modern" creations from Europe. I can't warm up to modernistic art, especially on glass. It seems that anything grotesque passes for 'art' these days." A subjective criticism at best, but one that gives us a picture of the personality of a master engraver.

The same care and pride that went into his cuttings went into Mr. Krall's descriptions. In a manuscript on "Lathe Stone Cutting on Glass," he wrote:

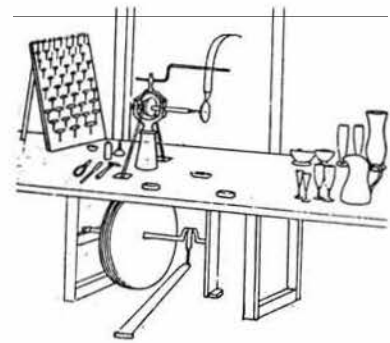

Two Libbey copper wheel engravers, Henry Werner and Emil Krall, were the very first to conceive the idea of using stone wheels on the copper wheel lathe in place of copper, oil and emery. They used stone wheels to the same advantage as copper wheels in cutting small details and certain slide cuts. Due to greater flexibility of wrist and forearm movements in the under the wheel cutting technique, engravers can cut smaller curves and slide cuts and do it for commercial quantity.

Since stone and water are less expensive than copper, oil and emery, there also was an advantage in the cost of materials.

A month later, in another manuscript, he wrote about "American Cut Glass: The Processes of Roughing, Smoothing Polishing." Here again, we sense the devotion to his craft. He even included his own rendering of a shop.

Limited quantities of later period cut glass are available in antique establishments and can be seen in exhibits and at auctions. One is not likely, however, to ever again see the typical, old-time glass cutting shop where such exquisite pieces of cut glass were hand cut and polished.

To enter one of those shops for the first time was a thrilling experience to the beholder. At the height of cut glass production, it was not unusual for shops to employ 50-60 glass cutters, roughers and polishers. Glass cutting shops usually were housed in a long brick building with many windows on either side of the walls to provide adequate light for the cutters.

... To see some 50-60 leather belts stretched right and left to either side of the building from the ceiling to each frame gave one the impression of festoons arranged for some gala celebration. ...

Throughout his letters and manuscripts Anton Krall upholds the quality and careful design he felt were intrinsic to Heisey glassware. In the stone cutting manuscript, he wrote about the principles used by Heisey cutters.

Heisey Designs were created with combination of techniques in mind and within the limits of stone engraving. Many designs were made to follow the contour of Heisey glass which proved very pleasing to the eye. Also, the cuttings are deep enough to show up well after being dipped in acid to give the glass highly desired rock crystal polish.

He accompanied the manuscript with explanatory drawings. Note the precision with which he rendered them.

I enclose a sheet of sketches and drawings to illustrate the distinctive features of under the wheel engravings, especially the fine shading slide lines in flower petals etc. and some larger sliding cuts marked by the letter B. The figures marked A indicate the larger preparatory cuttings made on the large lathe. On the bird, only the large body part...is cut on the large lathe. The copper wheel engraver then engraves the wings and all the small details. ...

Aside from slide cuts, only four fundamental cuts are used in stone wheel engraving—the edge cut, puntie, mitre and line cut. The cutting edge of stone for each type of cut are as follows—

... Due to better wrist movement the under the wheel engraver can cut smaller and better curves in edge cuts as follows—

B

There are more than 40 pages of correspondence, manuscripts and drawings from Anton Krall from 1979. Surely this attests to his love of his craft and his fond memories of the cutting industry of the early 20th century. He summed it up best in his concluding remarks on the stone cutting process: "The engraver must have absolute confidence in his ability to make a cut on glass where he wants it. There are no erasers for engravers. Once the glass touches the revolving wheel, a mark is left on the glass which cannot be erased." ♦

From the Archives

Don Valdes

I have a Christmas story for you. Last month I mentioned T. Clarence Heisey's loyalty and affection for both Amherst and Psi U fraternity. This becomes abundantly clear as one reads from the mountain of correspondence that went across the man's desk. Recently I came across a letter from a fraternity brother that struck me as being of particular interest to a Heisey collector. Here is a portion of the letter dated December 20, 1933:

The other day in looking through the family cupboard I found it was getting rather bare of things to hold the new privileges we now have¹ and it occurred to me that I might give a thoughtful surprise to the family by presenting them with a good stock of glassware for ordinary uses, and so, if it is not putting you to too much trouble or stretching friendship too far, I would appreciate it if you would ship me as soon as possible a barrel of glassware at the best price the N.R.A.² will permit you to give to an old friend. We can use tumblers, two dozen highball glasses, two dozen cocktail glasses, one dozen beer glasses, etc., in fact, I think we can use anything in the way of useful glassware. I haven't any idea how much glassware goes into a barrel or what the cost of it should be. I should like to spend around $25.00 for this glassware (italics mine)—a little more or a little less won't make any difference. I should like to have it shipped to our receiving department, 20 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., C.O.D. or if time permits you to advise me as to the cost I will forward my check directly to you. I should, however like to get the barrel, if you can ship it to me, as near Christmas as possible.³

For those of you interested in puzzles, go to your 1933 price lists and determine just how many "tumblers, highball glasses, cocktail glasses and beer glasses" Mr. Heisey sent his friend. Further development of this theme might include: suggested patterns; would it all fit in a barrel?; compare to current value. If shipped immediately upon receipt of the request, how close to Christmas do you think it would arrive under today's conditions?

Another holiday chuckle from a letter to H. C. Huntington December 23, 1939

...Generosity like yours convinces me that, after all, there is a Santa Claus. Anyway, we would all be out of luck if it wasn't for Santa Claus, for isn't he the greatest promotional expert and "whooper upper" of business that the world has ever possessed? If we did not have Old Santa to spur the people on and imbue them with the spirit of good will toward men, I am afraid business generally would be pretty much of a flop. So we say very definitely that Santa Claus is not only a very potent factor in our personal lives, but in our business.

In consequence of him, annually, we all like to have people whom we like and with whom we are associated know that we are thinking of them.

So we say to you, Santa, a million thanks and a Merry Christmas and many, many of them.

Have a great Christmas and may 1994 be good to you and yours.

¹ For you youngsters, prohibition (the 18th Amendment) had just been repealed.

³ I point out that this letter was dated December 20!

CLUB NOTES

Bay State Heisey Club #5

Susan Pescatore

At our meeting on October 12, Show and Tell produced finds galore, such as: Pillows creamer and spooner; Kalonyal salt and pepper; Half-Circle sugar and creamer, Sahara; Crystolite coupe plate; #1185 sugar and creamer with an unknown but probable Heisey etch; and Hoffman House goblets with Fox Chase, Tavern, and Sportsman etches.

David Steer monitored a program on Marigold, with some fascinating talks about its instability and many excellent examples: Octagon, Twist and Yeoman; the #501-3-1/2" flower block; #128 Liberty and #132 Sunburst candlesticks; #1210 Frog-Handled Cheese dish; and a #393 Narrow Flute individual sugar. ♦

The Hoosier Heisey Club #45

Sonnie Taylor

The Hoosier Heisey Club held its third quarter meeting on Saturday, October 2, 1993 at the Warren library in Indianapolis. Eighteen members were present. Don Rabourn, vice president, conducted the meeting.

Bill Phillips, nominating committee chairman, reported that the election of officers of 1994 will be held at the November meeting.

Larry Higgins stated that the acquisition committee from the museum could not give a specific list of wants, Tom Taylor made a motion, seconded by Fred Duhm, to donate $50.00 each in memory of Harry Zaiser and Evelyn Prather. Don Rabourn brought an enameled lavender jar to be donated to the museum in memory of Irene Pop.

Don Rabourn announced "Warwick" as the study pattern and color for the November 20th meeting. Dave Stratton presented slides produced for the Heisey Museum showing Heisey cuttings. He explained the difference between a rock crystal cutting and a grey cutting. We learned that Heisey had three different Rose cuttings, some patterns do not repeat, and that the same pattern is known by different names on some pieces of glass. Dave told us that Heisey brought out new cuttings in 1956 which were very modern in design. Jean Phillips gave a very interesting study on Ruby Flash and other decorated pieces. She stated that other companies purchased Heisey blanks and then decorated them with enamel, silver, and gold. ♦

Heisey Club of California #13

Bill Brakemeyer, President

The annual meeting of Heisey Club of California was held October 24 at the home of President Bill Brakemeyer and Dave Molina, with co-hosts Bill Issitt and Wilson Murray. Thirty-five members and guests attended the twenty-year observance of the founding meeting of HCC in 1973. During the business meeting members approved revisions to the club by-laws, as recommended by the by-law committee and its chairperson Betty Wanser. Officers elected to serve in 1994 will be President Gene Moenning, Vice President Libby Williams, Secretary Philip Macmillan and Treasurer Homer Paulson. An informative program on Heisey individual cream and sugar sets was presented by Bill Brakemeyer, with prepared handout information and numerous examples of these items brought for the program by members. Members Bill Issitt and Wilson Murray prepared a display of Heisey glassware for the Precious Times Antique Mall in September and were available on Saturdays for identification and information; they will be doing another presentation in November in Ontario. Bill Brakemeyer will be presenting a program on Heisey glassware for the Depression Heirs Glass Club annual meeting in Riverside in November. During Show and Tell, members and guests displayed many Heisey finds from recent weeks. Our members are fortunate to still be able to find Heisey in our area when it has been so well documented with reference books, articles, and pricing guides. Our club welcomed new members Lynn and Richard Borino, Pamela Bisson, and Sue Moore. The Club meeting in November was on Warwick prepared by Tom Parsons and hosted by HCA Board member Frances Brock, and the annual Christmas Party will be held in December hosted by Terry Smith in Signal Hill. ♦

National Capital Heisey Study Club #44

Butch Jones

The October meeting was held on Tuesday October 12. Our program for the evening was "A Junkie's Guide to Heisey" (the search for Bargains), presented by John Martines. We also brought along our favorite piece, color and pattern of Heisey (also, Whatzits & finds/fakes). Many interesting pieces and finds were shared. Our November meeting was held Nov. 15. ♦
