President's Update

Amy Jo Jones

Now that June is upon us bringing the 1995 annual convention, plans which have been ongoing since last year have been finalized and now await implementation as scheduled. If you haven't yet registered, it is not too late. The registration form again is in this newsletter. Remember you can refer back to last month's convention article for a review of the activities.

Most of the activity concerning June deadlines is the preparation for the advertising exhibit scheduled to run June through August in the multi-purpose room of the museum. Kelly Thran, Don Valdes and Molly Kaspar have been making the final selections of materials to be featured in the exhibit and begin the next process of putting it all together. Seeing all the ads laid out in the room is fascinating and irresistible. You can't read just one! The story told here is one we all know, but I think you will find it very fascinating and educational as relayed through the perspective of A.H. Heisey and company's advertising.

A reminder about newsletter delivery. From time to time we are notified a member has not received their newsletter in what is determined to be a generous and reasonable period of time. Kelly Thran, newsletter editor, has been very diligent in working with the post office in Newark to avoid any problems in the mailing of the newsletter from this end. Every suggestion the post office has made we have complied with in an effort to expedite the delivery of the Heisey News. Still things can happen out of our control such as the way the newsletter is handled once it reaches its destination. As second class mail it has a lower priority than first class and is at the discretion of the carrier how timely it will be handled due to the first class load. Apparently the postal service is able to efficiently handle delivery in almost all cases. As an example, I live near Dayton, just two hours away from Newark. Occasionally my newsletter takes up to nine days to reach me and that situation is not made any better when my mother in Colorado receives hers sooner than I. If you are experiencing a continuing delay, do as I did. Check your mailing label to make sure all information is correct, then contact your local post office to resolve the situation there. As an added service for our members who wish to receive their newsletters as soon as possible, first class mailing is available for $13 per year to cover the cost of twelve newsletters plus the auction issue.

In June, the board of directors says good-bye to members whose terms are over: Virginia Johnson, Bradenton, Florida; Jim Jones, Temple Hills, Maryland; Louise Ream, Westerville, Ohio, and Phyllis McClain of Newark, Ohio. These people have served HCA very well not only during their terms on the board, but throughout their years as members of HCA. It has been a pleasure serving with them. I know all of you will join me in expressing your appreciation to them for the commitment they have made to HCA.

Recently the museum was the appreciative recipient of glass donations from Beverly Eriksen and Brenda Coone of Florida, in memory of their parents, William and Geraldine Morgan who lived in Newark. One hundred ninety six pieces from their collections were donated. Mr. Morgan and his brother, Thomas, were workers at the Heisey plant. Janice Hermann of Nebraska, donated an opal punch bowl and stand in Beaded Panel and Sunburst in the memory of her husband, Darryl Herrman. Look for these and other donated pieces on display in June during convention. HCA is very grateful for these donations and extends our sympathies to the families.

See all of you soon in Newark for Convention 1995! ♦

In Memoriam...

We are saddened to report the loss of two longtime members Warren Burgess of Columbus, Ohio, and Darrell Hermann of Lincoln, Nebraska. Our deepest sympathy goes to their family and friends.

1896

♦January 1. Heisey's first advertisement appeared in China, Glass and Lamps, showing table sets in the no. 1200 Cut Block* and no. 1201 Fandango* patterns. Both lines were on display at the Monongahela House¹ in Pittsburgh. The samples had been made by the Robinson Glass Company in Zanesville, Ohio, since the Heisey factory had not been able to start up in December as originally anticipated.²

♦January 22. China, Glass and Lamps reported that the new lines were "praised by most of the salesmen of the older firms as a very meritorious production."

♦April 9. The factory was started up and glassware was made for the first time. 210 workers were employed.³ The glass making departments were reported to be in the charge of Charles Zimmer and Adam Trautman.⁴

♦April 23. A. H. Heisey and Company was formally incorporated in West Virginia, with A. H. Heisey, George Duncan Heisey, Edgar Wilson Heisey,⁵ W. B. Lindsay and D. C. Snyder named as original stockholders.

♦The Newark Advocate reported that the plant had 125 men at this time. Eleven houses had been built on land belonging to Heisey, with many families ready to move in.

♦June 30. According to the Newark Advocate, another thirty-eight houses had been built by this time, with seventy-five altogether expected by the fall. The article went on to say that "The Heisey Land Company offers free land to the right parties for factory sites with a bonus of $150 for every man employed. The same concern will construct railroad sidings to all factories that locate here through their agency." As owner of his own natural gas plant, it was to Heisey's advantage to promote development in the area, through this land company.

¹The Monongahela House was built in 1839 on the corner of Smithfield and Water Street (Fort Pitt Boulevard) and was considered the finest hotel west of the Allegheny Mountains. For many years representatives from all of the major glass factories took rooms at the Monogahela House to show their new patterns each January. In later years the hotel's proximity to the waterfront ceased to be an advantage and despite a major renovation in the 1920s, the hotel was closed in 1935.

² According to Clarence Vogel (The Heisey Glass Newscaster, autumn 1986), Robinson also made some molds for Heisey, which eventually led to a lawsuit in regard to their work. The Robinson Glass Company had been founded in 1893 and quickly built a reputation for quality. However, after a number of legal difficulties and a series of labor problems, they were eventually absorbed into the National Glass Company in 1899 and almost immediately closed.

³ This starting date was reported in China, Glass and Lamps on April 15. A later report in the April 22nd issue of that same journal gave April 18th as the starting date. Still another date was given in the American Flint in June 1948, who recalled that the first piece of glassware was produced by Heisey on April 6th and carried in to the lehrs by 16-year old Fred Chapman. (He later became chairman of the hot metal department and remained with the company for 52 years, retiring in 1948.) Finally, a fourth starting date was reported in the Newark Advocate on April 23rd: "The A.H. Heisey Company starts up this morning . . .")

⁴ Theodore Carl Steimer, later owner of the Steimer Glass Company in Buckhannon, West Virginia, is also reported to have been employed by Heisey at this time. In a memoir entitled "Tennerton, a Village and its Glass" by Grace E. Clawson, it is said that he "spent about four years with Heisey and was responsible for developing several of their designs."

♦September. A catalogue was issued showing 108 pieces in the no. 1205 Fancy Loop* pattern.⁶

1897

♦January. A few advance pieces of no. 1220 Punt Band* were shown at this time, along with a line of new electric shades and globes. In mid-January, the first advertisement for no. 1225 Plain Band* also appeared.

♦Clarence B. Marter became Heisey's New York representative. He was also the representative for Gillinder and Sons of Philadelphia.

♦September. Heisey distributed a catalogue illustrating their new no. 1235 Beaded Panel and Sunburst*⁷ pattern, which China, Glass and Lamps described in its September 8th issue as "the most elegant design we have yet seen in pressed glassware."

♦November 12. The first two design patents were filed by Heisey on behalf of the new company for the no. 1225 cream and spoon holder. The patents were approved January 18, 1898, as nos. 28,180 and 28,181.

♦According to an article in the American Flint in July 1946, George Duncan Heisey became executive vice president this year.

♦It is possible that two additional patterns, no. 150 Pointed Oval in Diamond Point* and no. 160 Locket on Chain*, were also introduced this year. No. 1245 Star and Zipper* was probably introduced late in 1897.

♦Vaseline (Canary) may have been made for the first time in 1897.

♦March 21. The Heiseys sold their residence in Idlewood, Pennsylvania. At this time, Heisey probably moved to the Whardon Hotel in Newark, while his wife took Mary, their daughter, to Arizona where it was hoped she would be able to recover from tuberculosis.

♦October. Heisey was one of the companies to sign a preliminary agreement to create a flint tableware manufacturers combine, to be organized under the laws of New Jersey and known as the United Glass Manufacturers' Association.⁸ Stock was to be issued to each of the factory proprietors according to the appraised value of their respective works, with a board of directors elected and placed in charge of general affairs. A central sales agency would also be established and a uniform price list drawn up for all lines of ware.

♦February. No. 1250 Groove and Slash* was advertised for the first time.

♦Opal was mentioned in this ad, and according to the February 4, 1899 issue of the National Glass Budget, it was at this time that Heisey began production of this color.⁹

⁶ China, Glass and Lamps reported on January 13th that it was "admitted by rivals to be among the choicest pieces of pressed ware ever made."

⁷ In the January 12, 1898 issue of China, Glass and Lamps, this was referred to as Heisey's no. 1235 Chrysanthemum pattern.

⁹ Some sources indicate that opal may have been made as early as 1897, but this cannot be verified from information appearing in the trade journals. Heisey's ads prior to this date consistently mention crystal only.

◆April 19. Heisey attended a meeting of glassware manufacturers in Pittsburgh to discuss the proposed tableware combine. An option deal, with New York financing, had fallen through, but it was felt that an independent stock deal, financed by the manufacturers themselves, was still a possibility.

◆May 18. The first advertisement for no. 1280 Winged Scroll* appeared.¹⁰

◆August 10. Ivorina Verde (Custard) and Emerald were mentioned for the first time in China, Glass and Lamps.¹¹

◆September 1. An advertisement in the China, Glass and Pottery Review introduced the new no. 300 Peerless* line, “complete in every particular comprising 150 pieces.”

◆September 21. China, Glass and Lamps extolled the new pattern, stating that the “makers have departed boldly and radically from the beaten path in designing their new line . . . It is pleasant to turn to an honest and unpretentious reproduction of the old and simple forms of antiquity, since one feels at once that only a metal maker capable of producing pure fine crystal would be bold enough to adapt a heavy cut ware pattern with broad flute.”¹²

◆October. Heisey visited Pittsburgh during the early part of this month and paid visits to several of the directors of the proposed tableware combine. “Report has it that he will either identify himself with the combine or cooperate with it.” (China, Glass and Lamps, October 19.)

◆October 25. The National Glass Company, as the new combine had been named, assumed control of nearly half the flint and tableware plants in the United States.¹³ Heisey remained outside the combine, unwilling to join unless cash were paid for the factory, instead of stock, as seems to have been proposed.

◆Other patterns which may have been new in 1899 included no. 9 Single Slash and Panel* and no. 1295 Bead Swag*.¹⁴

◆March. The no. 1 candlestick was advertised in the China, Glass and Pottery Review as one of “30 new pieces recently added to our 300 pattern.” This was the first candlestick to be made by Heisey. This was also the first ad to refer to “the pattern without a peer,” from which the name it is known by today was derived, no. 300 Peerless*.

◆April. The Diamond H first appeared in an advertisement in the China, Glass and Pottery Review. It was identified as a trademark, even though the application for trademark status was not made until the following year. The Diamond H was designed by George Duncan Heisey, who based it on the diamond from his college fraternity symbol. having resulted in the company’s output for 1900 exceeding that of any preceding year.

¹¹ Some sources believe both these colors were made previously, possibly as early as 1896 for Emerald and 1897 for Ivorina Verde, but there is no documentation to either prove or disprove this.

¹² In fact, Heisey was not the first company to re-introduce a fluted colonial pattern. The Riverside Glass Company of Wellsburg, W. Va., brought out their colonial X Ray set as early as 1896.

¹⁴ There is no reliable data concerning the introduction of this pattern. Published guesses have placed it between 1897 and 1899.

♦October. It was reported that during the summer shutdown, a new decorating oven had been completed, tripling the company's capacity in this department.

♦December. Two new shops¹⁵ had been added by this time, with unexpectedly large demands having resulted in the company's output for 1900 exceeding that of any year.

♦Two additional patterns were advertised in December as new for the coming spring: no. 315 Paneled Cane* and no. 325 Pillows*.

♦January. The new pattern, no. 315 Paneled Cane* was described in the China, Glass and Pottery Review as retaining "much of the richness and graceful dignity" of the still popular no. 300 pattern, but also adding "the sparkling brilliancy of the imitation cut, securing an effect that is truly a "happy medium.""

♦Heisey's third daughter, Alice Graham Heisey, was married to Frederick Holton King, a young business man from Newark, who was related to the family that lived in the King House, the present home of the National Heisey Glass Museum.

♦June 31. The application was filed for the Diamond H trademark, claiming that it had been continuously used since "about November 1, 1900."¹⁶ The trademark was registered August 6., 1901.

♦September. Preparations were announced to build an addition to the factory, 90 x 90 feet and three stories high. (This addition apparently was not erected until 1905.)

♦A new color was experimented with, probably early this year. Called "Rose" in a July 1901 inventory, this was a color very similar to the later flamingo. The no. 1 candlestick, no. 305 Punt & Diamond Point* celery and various pieces in no. 325 Pillows* were listed in the inventory. Rose never went into production, though a few other pieces were also later made.

♦January. $5,000 was distributed among the employees as a reward for efficient work. The money was divided in accordance with credit marks awarded for fine work, the best attendance, and the smallest percentage of poor ware. Only one shop failed to benefit from this system of reward. It was announced that $10,000 would be similarly distributed in the coming year.

♦February. Two new patterns were being shown: no. 335 Prince of Wales Plumes and no. 337 Touraine.¹⁷

◆ January. Stemware in the no. 341 Puritan pattern was being shown. In a report in their March 19th issue, the Crockery and Glass Journal proclaimed "A. H. Heisey & Co. have certainly set the pace in pressed glassware." By 1904, this pattern had been expanded into a full line.

◆ February. No. 339 Continental was shown at the Monongahela House. The following month, no. 339½ was also shown.¹⁸

◆ June. It was reported that the factory would add another furnace during the summer vacation. This furnace seems not to have been begun until the following year, however.

◆ Price list 100 was issued in 1903.

1904

◆ February 15. Price list 104 was issued.

◆ July. A. H. Heisey was asked to accept the nomination for Congressman from the Newark district. He declined, pleading that he was not only a busy man, but that he had no liking for the political life.

◆ August. It was announced that a new generative 16-pot furnace was expected to be completed in October.

◆ October. The company doubled its capacity, with an increase of 300 employees.

◆ No. 333 Waldorf-Astoria¹⁹ and no. 343 Sunburst*²⁰ may have been made in 1904. No. 351 Priscilla* may have also come out this year or early in 1905, probably initially as a line of stemware only.

◆ A. H. Heisey probably moved into the house that he had constructed in Newark in 1903, sometime during this year.

◆ January 1. Price list 105 was issued. Price list 111 and catalog 50 may also have come out about this time.

◆ It was reported in the Crockery and Glass Journal that Heisey was "cheerful" over having secured a great abundance of gas for his factory with a surplus to sell to the town. His wells were said to have an 800-pound pressure. A later report in the September 1906 Glass and Pottery World said that the Heisey gas wells and pipe line were so extensive that he was furnishing other factories with gas.²¹

¹⁹ Some sources date this pattern as early as 1900-1902, but it does not appear in the 1903 price list. The earliest price list it appears in is from 1905.

²⁰ Some sources date this pattern to 1903, but it does not appear in the 1903 price list. The earliest price list it appears in is from 1905.

²¹ As an incentive to attract new industry to Newark at a time when newly planned construction was being discouraged by the high price of gas (nine cents per thousand feet), Heisey offered gas at seven cents to "any industry locating outside the city limits." The Board of Trade welcomed this offer, feeling that "cheap fuel is better than a bonus, lot sales and money contributions to offer factories that are seeking a location."

- ♦September. The crown of the new furnace collapsed, necessitating repairs.
- ♦October 16. An application for the Plunger Cut trademark was filed, with an indication that it had been in use since September 25th. This trademark was registered January 30, 1906.
- ♦November. The addition to the factory was completed. The Glass and Pottery World reported, "Before the completion of the addition to the large works this concern had much difficulty in placing orders." They went on to say, "The attractive glass plant . . . is made doubly so by a huge representative of the famous trademark, Diamond H, on the front of the building."

1906

- ♦January. Two new patterns were shown, no. 357 Prison Stripe* and no. 1776 Kalonyal.²²
- ♦February 3. The Plunger Cut trademark appeared in an ad for the first time, in China, Glass and Lamps.²³
- ♦April. A. L. Wells was mentioned as Heisey's New York representative.
 - ♦No. 352 Flat Panel*²⁴ was new this year.
 - ♦Price list 120 was probably issued late in 1906.

1907

- ♦January. No. 365 Queen Anne was reported as being new at the Monongahela House.²⁵
- ♦October. Returning from work, one of Heisey's employees, James Tenner, 55 years old, was struck by a train and instantly killed.
 - ♦George Duncan Heisey became seriously ill with typhoid and thereafter took a less active role in the factory.
 - ♦The two new patterns first shown in the fall of this year were no. 150 Banded Flute* and no. 369 Hartman.
 - ♦No. 331 Colonial Panel* may have come out this year.²⁶
 - ♦Price list 142 was probably issued late in 1907 or early in 1908.

1908

- ♦February 12. Price list 144 was issued.
- ♦March. Arthur A. Bean became Heisey's New York representative. He also handled the Laurel Cut Glass Company and the Camden City Cut Glass Company.
- ♦April 23. Catalog 54 was issued, devoted to hotel and soda fountain ware. Catalog 53 and price list 147, both of which contained candlesticks and vases, probably also date to about this time.

²³ The last use of this trademark seems to have been in the June 17, 1907 issue of the same journal.

²⁴ Two patents were filed for this pattern on May 9, 1908. It appeared in a 1906 price list, even though the pattern was not advertised until 1909.

²⁵ A patent for this pattern was filed the previous year, on July 9, 1906, and approved on August 28, 1906.

²⁶ Dated by some sources to 1906; however it does not appear in a price list from late that year. The earliest price list in which it can be found is dated 1908.

♦May. A. H. Heisey wrote a forceful letter to the National Association of Manufacturers, who had been considering the question of “open shops.” As reported in the Glass and Pottery World, he “suggests that the labor question is many sided and does not favor the antagonism which the organization has expressed against many forms of union labor.”

♦July 7. Prize money was once again distributed to the shops with the smallest percentage of loss at the end of the fiscal year. The head of the winning shop and his two assistants each received $260, while the nine helpers in the shop were given $52 each. In all, a total of $12,000 was distributed among two hundred employees, with the smallest amounts ranging from $75 for glass workers to $52 for the helpers.

♦July 16. It was announced that another building, 100 x 50 feet and three stories high, was about to be constructed, to be used as a warehouse.

♦August. Work on the new addition was progressing rapidly and it was expected that the building would be ready for occupancy in November.

♦Among the patterns that may have been new this year were no. 361 Criss Cross*, no. 379 Urn*²⁷ and no. 381 Heisey Quilt*.

No. 361-4 18. NAPPY

1909

♦January. Heisey’s showroom in the Crockery Exchange Building in New York was redecorated and received much favorable comment. According to the American Pottery Gazette, “Mirrors cover practically every portion of the spacious room except the floor and the ceiling. The supporting columns and the table edges in pure white form an excellent foil for the mirrors and the glassware, handsome always, is now a sight well worth the seeing.”

♦February. In cooperation with the YMCA, the company established the Heisey Boys’ Club for its younger employees. There were ninety members of this Club to begin with. They were provided with reading and social rooms, a lavatory and shower baths, etc., located at Main and Arch Streets in Newark.

♦April. It was announced that a popular magazine advertising campaign would soon begin.²⁸

♦May 20. The Diamond trademark (without an H) appeared in an advertisement in the Crockery and Glass Journal, stating: “Diamond Glassware is unsurpassed for brilliancy, color and durability. This trade mark is your guarantee that the ware is the best to be obtained.” A later ad in the September issue of Pottery and Glass made specific mention that “Diamond glassware as well as the celebrated Diamond H is a product of our factory.”

♦June 5. An application was filed for the Diamond trademark, claiming that it had been “continuously used . . . since about November 1st, 1900” (the date on which they had previously claimed that the Diamond H had first been used). This trademark was registered on November 23, but the company seems to have already discontinued its use by then.²⁹

♦July. The company installed batteries of electric fans to help make the high temperatures bearable.

No. 361-6 18. NAPPY

No. 361-8 18. NAPPY

²⁷ Dated by some sources as early as 1907.

²⁸ This campaign did not actually start until 1911.

²⁹ The last ad in which it appears is dated October 21, 1909, and shows both the Diamond H and the Diamond without an H. The next ad (In December 1909) features only the Diamond H.

♦August. Another $12,000 was distributed among the shops, rewarding the men making the largest percentage of good ware.

♦There was talk of another enlargement at this time.³⁰

♦E. G. Nock began working for Heisey, eventually becoming their New York representative, position he retained until his death in 1936.

♦Among the patterns that may have been new this year were no. 353 Medium Flat Panel*.³¹

♦Price lists 148 and 150 (which contain hotel glassware) and catalog 56 probably were issued sometime around 1909.

♦According to an article in the July 1946 issue of the American Flint, George Duncan Heisey who had become interested in the gas business, gave up his former position as president of the firm, retaining only a nominal association with the company.³²

³¹ The earliest patent for this pattern was not filed until February 2, 1910. Some sources have dated it as early as 1906, but it does not appear in a catalog until 1909.

³² According to the Newark Advocate, January 2, 1913, E. Wilson Heisey did not become president until 1913, suggesting a possibility that George Duncan Heisey might have remained with the company beyond 1909.

From the Archives—Remembering When

Don Valdes

Now I remember! It was in February, just before taking off for two months meandering about France, that I finished off my last article to appear during my absence in the April issue. Well, it is catch-up time. Kelly just buzzed me (or bugged me): "Do you have your next article ready?" And here I had been chuckling at my wife, Johnnie, who had to come home to be swamped with Licking County Symphony work, as well as the Granville Tennis Club. I thought I only had the advertising exhibit down the line, and it isn't until June.

But returning is fun. I met our new museum assistant, Molly Kaspar. She and Kelly have been hard at it, planning and preparing displays for the exhibit. In fact, they have done so much preparing I have been able to get right into my current project. We start setting up displays next week. We hope you'll like it.

My current project—I have strayed a bit from the archives by way of a series of circumstances. I'm convinced what I've been up to is worthwhile. I trust at least some of you will.

As I have mentioned before, I am not a "glass" person. Further, I have some kind of mental block about remembering numbers. You can imagine what this means when your task is to catalogue photographs of glassware, advertisements of glassware and, with Karen's absence, trying to identify and answer questions about glassware. As time went by and my brain became cluttered with pattern names and numbers I decided to employ my computer orientation to do the remembering for me. I developed a file with the most frequently encountered patterns and their decorations. As you can imagine, the list grew and grew and grew. Eventually I found myself spending more time working on the list than on the immediate task at hand.

One day, while playing archivist, I came upon a salesman's book of decoration prices. What a bonanza! Here were the prices for cuttings on patterns not listed in any of our reference books. I doubt that either the Bredheofts' or Louise Ream had come upon this gem. And not all of my reference materials were in agreement. There are ads for patterns with cuttings not listed in other sources. And so it goes. Just today I learned that our inventory records pattern #3407 as "Overdorf," not just "beer mug" as listed in The Index of Heisey Glassware.

As you might well imagine, my office began to take on the a disaster area appearance, the candlestick book by Felt and O'Grady; Mary Louise Burns', Heisey's Glassware of Distinction; the Bredehofts' Handbook of Heisey Production Cuttings; Bradley, Ryan and Ryan on Heisey stemware; Heisey on Parade by Sandra Stout; Louise Ream and the Bredehofts' book on etchings and engravings, and so on. Cross referencing became a real chore.

The upshot of all of this is that my compilation of Heisey glassware patterns by name and or number along with whatever decorations might have been used is almost complete. It is on a computer floppy, written in Word Perfect. By sorting and or selecting, one can get a listing of all of the patterns on which, for example, the cutting "Adam" appeared.

3331	Statuesque	674	Adam	@
3335	Lady Leg	674	Adam	@
4291	Marlene (candy jar)	674	Adam	@
71	Oval candlestick	674	Adam	%

Introduced circa 1925
Discontinued by 1932

1183	Revere	674	Adam	@
1184	Yeoman	674	Adam	@

or, by employing likewise, the variety of decorations applied to pattern #3355.

3355	Fairacre	170	Cleopatra	#
3355	Fairacre	442	Diana	#
3355	Fairacre	9001	Trefoil	#

I am currently in the "if only" phase, that is, if only I had done something or other differently. That is where I am (for Kelly and Molly: "That is where I am at...") presently. If only I had listed the source of my information as I found it. Fortunately, I had done this for some of my information. Now it is fill in the blank time.

For those of you who are computer users, I'm anxious to get your reaction. Don't hesitate to send me any suggestions or, better yet, let's talk about it in June! ♦

9001 TREFOIL *
Needle Etching

Introduced circa 1919

Even though not seen in any catalogs, this needle etching can be assumed to be of Heisey manufacture since it has been seen on parts of all the stemware lines listed below. It is quite similar to other known needle etchings.

Detail of Trefoil Etching

- 3355 FAIRACRE
- 10 oz. Goblet
 - 10 oz. Luncheon goblet

This Is The Way We Go For Good Southern Hospitality—North Carolina

Patsy Nesbit

Mid March usually finds Patsy and Charles taking a drive from North Carolina to Ohio for the HCA quarterly meeting. Since we have made this trek once or more a year since the late 1970's, we thought we might share some of the breaks and highlights of the journey we hope many of you will be making in reverse for the HCA quarterly meeting, September 8 and 9 in Greensboro, North Carolina.

We usually depart early in the morning from Winston-Salem, about twenty miles west of your destination, Greensboro. The hills and curves of Piedmont soon give way to the beautiful mountains of Western North Carolina and Virginia. We pass Andy Griffin's Mount Pilot (really Pilot Mountain) only a short distance from Winston-Salem on route 52 we sometimes eat breakfast in Mount Airy. There are still a few Mayberry ice cream shops in the area. We will pickup I-77 in the Hillsville, Virginia area (site of the famous Labor Day Weekend Antiques Market). Headed north and west we cross New River and look for the Revolutionary War Shot Tower. If you have time, stop for a short visit.

We travel from Virginia to West Virginia in the Bluefield area and suggest you take another break at the new rest area at Princeton. Beautiful mountain crafts are attractively displayed here. We find the scenery great and the toll booths an unpleasant distraction as we zoom along the West Virginia Turnpike. Approaching Charleston, we might break for lunch at a Bob Evans Farm Restaurant. Once we hit the road again it is just drive, drive, drive...to the Williamsport/Marietta area. We usually take some rest time at the Fenton Art Glass Factory and Museum. In Ohio, we leave I-77 at Cambridge (sometimes we take time to visit the museum and refresh our memory on Cambridge glass) and continue across I-77 to an easy exit for our Newark/Granville destination point. This is the basic trip. It is a pleasant and scenic drive and if I'm lucky, I can tune in some classic Blue Grass enroute. It does take seven or eight hours depending on time lost with frequent stops. With almost no stops and floorboarding, we can make it in six and one half hours, but that is not recommended.

There are other things to do along the way and we do alter our route. A favorite detour recommended by several North Carolina Heisey Collectors is to leave the Interstate at Princeton and take 460/219 to Lewisburg for an overnight at the General Lewis Inn (or take I-64 out of Beckley on the return trip). Sometimes we drive the much slower but more scenic back road route beside the turnpike and return via Pipe Stem State Park in West Virginia. Overnight reservations are recommended. Leaving Newark, we have traveled to Kentucky for a couple of days at Pleasant Hill, the Shaker Restoration with such good food and the Crafts center at Berea; headed north into Michigan and the Dearborn Museums; traveled across Pennsylvania to the Amish Country before we head south; we go north and east across New York and the New England states for a really round about journey home.

Our travels are mentioned in hopes that Heisey Collectors from all these various states will decide to plan an early fall vacation and come on down and join us for some good southern hospitality in our beautiful state of North Carolina. Those who fly in from far distant places will find the Greensboro Triad Airport (hub for Continental) served by most major airlines. ♦

Silent Auction & Swap—Apple Tree Auction Center, June 15, 7:00 pm-?

Conducted by The Dayton Area Heisey Club

Come join in the fun! Bring some of your Heisey Collection and consign it in one of several mini auctions throughout the evening. Eighty percent of the selling price per lot goes back to you and twenty percent is donated to HCA. Only Heisey can be consigned, Absolutely No Heisey by Imperial. Bring good quality glass (no chips, cracks, etc.).

When you consign your glass be prepared to tell the pattern name, number and description of each item (Tudor #411 covered candy box). We will try to help identify if you are unsure.

Each item in the silent auction is set on display with a bid sheet. You sign your name and dollar amount of bid on the sheet. Bids are in $1.00 increments unless the value of the item is over $10.00 then the bids are in $2.00. The last name on the bid sheet when each auction is over (when the bell rings) is the highest bidder. Just like a live auction you can bid more than once on an item. Just sign your name again and the amount you wish to bid.

The successful bidder can pick up the glass in the pick up area after the glass has been paid for. (We accept cash or checks made out to HCA, NOT to an individual).

If you don't want to sell your glass perhaps you would like to try your luck at the swap. Again this is Heisey only glass. Each person is permitted to have only twelve lots on the table at any time. The idea is to trade items for equal or higher valued items. You can trade up all evening by combining several items perhaps for just one item. Keep in mind when trading what you may have paid for an item, not just what it is worth today. NO money can be exchanged for items that are being swapped.

These events have always proven to be lively and a fun way to add to your collection! See you on Thursday evening. Remember to wear your badge.♦

Heisey News Binding Project

Bob Rarey

Every two years Heisey News binding service is offered to those members wishing to have this done and it is for the 1993-1994 volume. Binding will again be done by the same firm that has performed this service since the 1981-1982 volume. Of library quality, the cover will be the same dark blue with gold lettering as was previously used. The price for binding is $22.00 per volume, plus $4.00 per volume if return shipping is required.

Back issues of the Heisey News will be bound for the same price. If some back issues of the Heisey News are missing, some may be available from HCA. Check with the museum staff if you need back issues.

Please! Remember you must remove all staples before binding.

The cut-off date for binding will be the last day of the 1995 HCA Convention, June 17, 1995.

You may bring or send your newsletters to the HCA museum or send directly to me at my home address. (Make checks payable to HCA).♦

CLUB NOTES

Northwest Heisey Collectors #22

Gordon Cochran

Help Support Your Museum!

Northwest Heisey Collectors Club will continue to give raffle tickets for Heisey Glass. We prefer small items that will be sold in the museum shop. They need not be marked. A raffle ticket will be given for each item donated with a value of $5.00. Bring your Heisey glass with you to the convention. If you are not coming to the convention, you can send your glass in, or drop it off at the museum shop. We will be collecting glass at the following locations during convention times:

The National Heisey Glass Museum—ALL Days of the Convention.

The evening of the Weenier Roast.

The evening of the Swap and Silent Auction.

All pieces that were not swapped or traded during the swap meet will be greatly appreciated as donations. During the evening of the banquet, we will draw the winning ticket. The lucky winners will take home with them either a frosted Lavender Ice Tropical Fish or frosted Lavender Ice Flying Mare.

Last year was a great year, lets see if we can surpass it! ♦

Rochester Area Heisey Collectors Club

George Reynolds

The January meeting was held at the home of Donna and Bruce Schwendy. Our President, Bruce, introduced our guests, Molly and Tom Corcoran from Medina, New York. Molly was raised in Newark, Ohio. However, we won't hold that against her. Her maiden name is Lewis, perhaps some of the local Newark people remember her. During the meeting Molly and Tom became members and were welcomed by all.

Bruce read letters from Janet Caswell and Tom Bischoff. He also mentioned that several members of the club had obtained a video recently produced by HCA. The title of this very interesting work is, A Legacy of American Craftsmanship. This is a very well done project and all members should try to see it. Bill

Heron described his trip to the California meeting and auction in December. Bill had nothing but good things to say about the California club and the quality of the glass offered at the auction.

The subject for the meeting was; Heisey Glass produced before 1900. Most of the items made during this period were on display. Bruce did his usual good job of describing the patterns from Fandango to Wing Scroll (Ivorina Verde). Another very interesting and informative meeting. ♦

Gulf Coast Heisey Club #42

Virginia Johnson

The March meeting of our Club was held Thursday, March 16 at the home of Rose Mensh in Port Richey, Florida. There were only seven members present as several were traveling or unable to attend due to other reasons. At this meeting the election of officers for the next two years was held. Bob Ellis will be our President and Fran Grenzebach will be our Secretary-Treasurer. The due date for dues was changed from January to November. Odell Johnson was elected as our delegate to the National Convention in June.

In the absence of Virginia Johnson, Odell reported on the March Benefit Auction and meeting held in March. Our members were so sorry to hear of the illness of Louise Ream and a card was sent from our club. HCA owes so much to Louise for her involvement and expertise and her love of Heisey Glass.

The meeting was adjourned for Rose's delicious lunch and viewing her collection of Orchid Etch. Following lunch Adele Pardee gave an illustrated talk on Heisey advertising and passed out some informative material.

During Show and Tell, finds were a Custard Winged Scroll cream and sugar, a rare Moongleam egg cup, Pillows perfume, 4½" Cobalt ball vase, helmet basket with cutting, an 8" #341 nappy with cover, and the piece de resistance a marked HEISEY cap gun. (Welcome aboard, Captain Johnson?)

The next meeting will be Thursday, November 16 at the home of Jack and Fran Granzebach, Seminole, Florida and the program will be Favor Vases and Puff Boxes. January 18, 1996 the meeting will be our Annual Fund Raising Auction at the home of John and Adele Pardee. We welcome visitors and welcome you Floridians in our area to join our club. ♦
